The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1, 2, 9, 10 and 17 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being clearly anticipated by Demeyer et al. (4,380,785).

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

Claims 3-8 and 11-16 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Demeyer et al..

Claims 3, 5, 11 and 13 are drawn to a capacitor and/or means that is chargeable by turning off the semiconductor switch for a short period of time so as to provide control current to keep the semiconductor switch maintained on. Figure 2 of the Reference discloses the use of a capacitor being connected in series with a transistor (54) and the base connection of the semiconductor switch (56), but is somewhat silent with respect to its operation. An auxiliary control device (90) is disclosed as preventing inadvertent tripping upon application of initial power.

Therefore, it is the opinion of the Examiner that it would have been obvious to ensure series capacitor of Figure 2 gets charged as needed to help ensure the semiconductor switch (56) is maintained on, thereby leading to a more reliable trip circuit. Claims 4, 6-8, 12 and 14-16 appear to limit the tripping in response to a "short-circuit" only. Demeyer et al. disclose tripping for a short-circuited condition as well as for other types of fault conditions (i.e. ground fault). However, it would have been obvious to limit the tripping to a short-circuit condition only, dismissing the decreased level of protection being offered to a load, as a means to offer a more compact and cheaper (due to less components needed) protection design to particular applications. Short-circuit protection also offers protection to the power source.

Any inquiry concerning this communication or earlier communications from the examiner should be directed to Ronald W. Leja whose telephone number is (571)272-2053. The examiner can normally be reached on Monday thru Friday.
